

HALF MILLION IS ESTIMATED LOSS

Railroads Suffer From Washouts and Tourists Are Marooned.

TRACK DAMAGE IS REPAIRED

ALL COLORADO ROADS ARE STILL MORE OR LESS TIED UP.

Denver, Aug. 20.—Damage to Colorado railroads caused by rains and floods of the last few days will reach $500,000, according to estimates by local railroad men. Nearly all the roads are still more or less tied up, with fully 1,000 tourists marooned along the lines of the Denver & Rio Grande, Santa Fe, Colorado Midland and Colorado & Southern.

The half-million-dollar loss to the railroads includes not only damage to tracks, bridges and roadbeds, but also the financial loss through delayed business and extra work and expense in making detours.

At about 8 o'clock this morning the Denver & Rio Grande brought in nearly 300 passengers over the Union Pacific, and their coast trains went out over the same route last night and this morning. At least 200 tourists of them were turning from the Grand Army encampment at Salt Lake, are reported marooned at Salda and Canon City, while many more are held up at Leadville, Glenwood Springs and western slope points. The South Park branch of the Colorado & Southern is reported to have suffered much, and considerable delay was caused for a time. It is said, however, that nearly all the track damage has been repaired and all the Clear Creek trains are operating on regular schedule.

The Colorado & Southern tracks and bridges in the vicinity of Trinidad were either badly damaged or swept away, and the Santa Fe depot there had a narrow escape from being washed away. The main line of the Colorado & Southern is also broken about thirty miles north of Trinidad at a place called Mayne.

The worst damage to the Colorado Midland was on both sides of Ute pass, near Cascade, and all passenger trains were held up there. Yesterday the line was re-established long enough to get two trains through, but additional washouts stopped traffic again last night.

Reports From Pueblo.

Pueblo, Colo., Aug. 20.—Although danger from flood waters in the Arkansas river apparently is past, reports of further damage by cloudbursts and washouts are being received.

outs are heard from surrounding towns. From Canon City comes the report of another cloudburst at Four Mile creek, yesterday afternoon, which again transformed the stream into a raging torrent and swelled the river at that point. Much rain has fallen there and in the surrounding mountains during the last twenty-four hours.

An additional thousand feet of the Denver & Rio Grande tracks through the gorge were rendered unsafe by the heavy rains last night and the big masonry retaining wall owned by the company was badly damaged. A force of 300 men has been at work day and night in the gorge since the flood damage, Tuesday night, but it will be several days before normal traffic can be resumed. The gorge itself is a mass of tangled debris. The famous hanging bridge is covered with sand and debris three feet deep.

Both the Denver & Rio Grande and the Colorado Midland are operating trains west of Leadville, but regular traffic has not been resumed. Yesterday the river at Florence washed out 100 yards of reinforcement embankment below the head-gates of the Union ditch. It has been raining there almost constantly for the past twenty-four hours.

Blockade Is Raised.

Salida, Colo., Aug. 20.—The blockade on the Rio Grande was raised this noon, after three days without trains between Salda and Pueblo. This morning the railroad announced that no more trains would be sent over the narrow gauge, as the flooded tracks were about ready to wash out. Train after train, only ten minutes apart, are taking the marooned passengers out.

This is the longest tie-up in the history of the Rio Grande in many years. The river at this point has subsided and it is considered that all danger is past.

Wreck at Tucker.

Whitewater, Colo., Aug. 20.—Passengers arriving in Grand Junction yesterday, on Denver & Rio Grande No. 7 from Salt Lake, tell of an accident at Tucker, Utah, that might well have resulted in a worse wreck than that at Husted. The conductor and fireman of a freight train sidetracked at that point undertook to water and coal their engine in the absence of the engineer, who was at lunch. Returning to their train by the way of the main line, the engine crashed into No. 7 from the west.

The three engines of No. 7, as well as that of the freight, were derailed and wrecked. There were more than 200 passengers on No. 7, but no one was hurt, the slow speed of the passenger train being the only thing that prevented a catastrophe. The trainmen were injured slightly.

Flood in Platte River.

Denver, Aug. 20.—The flood in the Platte river, because of the breaking of the dam on Lake Georgia, fozied out in a six-inch stream this morning. Fear for the safety of the Cheesman dam proved groundless and that structure held back the outpour from Lake Georgia without straining any section.

The water in the Platte was high yesterday and last night on account of cloudbursts in tributary streams, but no damage was done. Railroad traffic west of Pueblo is still tied up and anything like schedule time will not be possible inside of a week.

AMUSEMENTS.

ORPHEUM THEATRE.

Although a fairly new recruit to the ranks of vaudeville, Grace Armond, at the Orpheum this week, has already made a firm foothold and has established herself a firm favorite. She is well known in the musical comedy world and her last engagement was with "The Wizard of Oz," in which she acted as understudy to Lotta Faust. Ladle Cliff whose name is in everybody's mouth, will be seen for the last time at today's matinee and next performance. The new bill will go on tomorrow night.

BUNGALOW THEATRE.

There will be a matinee of "The New Magdalen" at the Bungalow this afternoon, and this evening the company will close its engagement at that theatre. The evening performance will be the last opportunity to see this excellent play as rendered by Miss Anna Cleveland and her associates. Miss Cleveland has made a really remarkable impression in her first starring engagement here, and her return some day will be confidently hoped. When Miss Cleveland's company leaves, the Bungalow will be dark until the first week in September.

COMES AT CLOSE OF LONG MEETING

office of justice of the peace, later giving up active campaigning for law practice. His office is in room 801, Deseret News Annex.

All of the members of the juvenile court commission were present: Governor William Spry, A. C. Nelson, state superintendent of public instruction, and Albert R. Barnes, attorney general. John K. Hardy, Governor Spry's secretary, acted as secretary of the meeting, as M. A. Breeden, secretary of the commission, was a candidate for the office of juvenile court judge. Another meeting of the commission will be held upon the return of Governor Spry from Seattle later in the month, at which time Mr. McMaster will be called in and the policies of the commission explained in the handling of juvenile court cases. Mr. McMaster will probably be officially notified today of his appointment to the judgeship.

"While the appointment comes to me as a surprise, it is none the less gratifying to me," said Mr. McMaster last night. "I have taken a keen interest in juvenile court work from the outside, though I have never been actively interested in this work in the juvenile court. My name was proposed by my friends for the position, and I have them to thank for the appointment."

"Since my name was proposed, I have made a close study of the juvenile laws of Utah, both the old and the new, and believe the new are nearly a model. I have been a Sunday school man most of my life and have, therefore, had much to do with children. My interest is with them, and I feel that I can do much for them. I feel keenly for the unfortunate boys and girls who fall into bad ways, and will do everything I can to help them."

Devote Time to Work.

"I intend to give my whole time to this work. It is a cause which appeals to me, and I cannot give too much to direct wayward boys and girls to the right path. There is a big field here for the right man, and, if I am the right man—which is my hope—then I can do much for the community. It will be my ambition to develop here in Salt Lake one of the best juvenile court systems in the country."

The appointment of Mr. McMaster came as a surprise to the many people who have been so intensely interested in the fight for the judgeship, owing to the fact that his name has hardly been mentioned as in the race. It was not much of a surprise to his friends, however, as they have maintained all along that he is the man for the place, and have evidently put up convincing arguments to members of the commission. The fight seemed to center between J. Fred Anderson and Harry S. Harper, but after the long meeting Friday Mr. McMaster was selected. He had been called to the office of Governor Spry twice during the last two weeks, as were other candidates, to talk over their views of handling the juveniles.

The resignation of Judge E. G. Gowan as judge of the juvenile court of Salt Lake was received by Governor Spry Thursday, to take effect Aug. 31, and on the next day Judge Gowan will enter upon his duties as superintendent of the state industrial school at Ogden. This will fall in with his line of work in the juvenile court and will enable Judge Gowan and Judge McMaster to work together in the interest of the boy who has started wrong.

Ever since it became known, more than a month ago, that Judge Gowan would fill the superintendency at the Ogden school, there has been no end of speculation as to who would succeed him as juvenile court judge, and the friends of each candidate worked tirelessly with members of the commission for their favorites.

"There will be neither politics nor religion in my handling of the office," said Mr. McMaster last night. "I will be there to help the boys and girls whose wrongdoings bring them before me, and they will get my entire attention and energy."

Judge McMaster will start upon his work as judge of the Salt Lake court after Sept. 1.

UTAH TO EXHIBIT AT CHICAGO FAIR

Meeting Is Held to Determine at the Office of the Governor.

DETAILS NOT ARRANGED

COMMERCIAL CLUBS OF STATE TO BE INVITED TO HELP.

Utah will have an exhibit at the United States Land & Irrigation exposition at Chicago, Nov. 2 to Dec. 5. This was definitely decided at a meeting of irrigation men in the office of Governor William Spry yesterday. Every commercial and civic organization in the state will be canvassed at once for the purpose of arousing interest in the event. Space has been reserved for Utah on the main floor of the Coliseum.

The Utah exhibit will consist chiefly of agricultural and horticultural products, and committees will be named in a short time to make the exhibit as attractive as possible. No one section of the state will be more favored than the other, but the whole will be grouped in an array which, it is hoped, will surpass that of any other. Most western states have made arrangements for exhibits at the exposition.

Governor Spry will meet with Fisher Harris, secretary of the Salt Lake Commercial club, today, for the purpose of getting into communication with all of the other commercial clubs in the state. A cash expenditure of about $250 is anticipated for the exhibit, and an effort will be made to have the legislature of 1911 refund the money spent for this purpose.

F. H. Griswold of the Chicago Tribune, under the auspices of which the exposition will be held, explained the object of the exposition to the men in the governor's office yesterday. Another meeting will be held early next week, at which the governor will be able to state when interest will be reported and further details of the scheme outlined. Those at the meeting were: Governor Spry, William Thomas H. Allen, Kenneth C. Kerr, Daniel S. Spencer, Lytleton Price, J. Edward Taylor, Lefroy Armstrong and several others.

Governor Spry was given power to appoint a committee of eleven, including himself, to arrange the exhibit at the Utah exhibit. This committee may be announced today, after the meeting with Fisher Harris.

TWELVE NIECES ARE REMEMBERED

Property Valued at $100,000 Distributed by Will of B. F. Saunders.

Property valued at more than $100,000 is bequeathed to relatives in the will of B. F. Saunders, who died July 26. The will was filed for probate in the district court yesterday. Edgar L. Clark of Parowan, Iron county, named in the will as executor without bond, filed a petition for letters testamentary in the estate. Mr. Clark makes the following classification of the estate: Life insurance policy in the Hartford Life Annuity company, $5,000; life insurance policy in the Hartford Annuity company, $5,000; life insurance in the Penn Mutual of Philadelphia, $10,000; household goods, books, pictures, buggy, gold watch and chain, brooch, ring, etc.; half interest in the cattle partnership of Haley & Saunders, $75,000 to $100,000.

The household goods, pictures and books, buggy and Mrs. Saunders' gold watch and chain are bequeathed to a niece, Mary P. Peabody, and the balance of the estate is divided among eleven other nieces, as follows: Clara, Mary, Margaret and Frances Sheldon, daughters of Mrs. Margaret J. Sheldon of Stewartville, Mo.; Mary, Lula and Ruth Saunders, daughters of his brother, W. H. Saunders of Cuba, Mo.; Elizabeth Saunders, daughter of another brother, A. J. Saunders; Mrs. Lora Weber of Mrs. Grace Chappell of St. Joseph, Mo., and Miss Ruth Smith of Stewartville, Mo., daughters of a sister, Mrs. Mary F. Smith.

Saunders bequeaths his gold watch and chain to his brother, Dr. L. E. Saunders of St. Joseph, Mo. The will is dated December 31, 1908, and was witnessed by L. L. Stuart and A. F. Rynders. Saunders directs that his body be placed at the side of his wife in the vault at Mt. Mora cemetery, St. Joseph, Mo.

Well Known Cattle Man.

Saunders was one of the best known cattle men of the inter-mountain west and was junior partner of the cattle firm of Haley & Saunders, which has thousands of head of cattle in Utah, Nevada, Idaho and Wyoming to the markets in the east.

of the recommendations to congress, is a law providing incorporation to the nation to carry on interstate commerce. Mr. Wickensham has made an exhaustive study of state laws of incorporation. He believes that a national incorporation law is the inevitable result of economic conditions.

Corporation Tax Law.

With the enactment of the corporation tax law, which requires that corporations annual reports concerning their business, which the stockholders and creditors are entitled to know, the attorney general believes that a national incorporation law should logically follow. President Taft seems inclined to share this belief, and it is predicted that the annual message in December will urge congress to enact legislation along these lines.

The president is committed, it can also be said, to an amendment to the interstate commerce act, legalizing traffic agreements among the railroads, providing they are approved by the interstate commerce commission. This also will be embodied in the recommendations to congress.

A third reform upon which the president is determined is that which pertains to the greatest of all three named and is war and wool with the Roosevelt policies. The president himself has said that through such legislation the much-discussed physical valuation of railroads might not only become necessary, but easy of accomplishment.

Competing Railroads.

And in line with this is the president's desire to make it unlawful for an interstate railway to acquire stock in a competing line. These last named evils, in fact, are grouped by the president in his description of the present situation, and it can be said on good authority that he aims to strike at both of them in the bills that will be submitted to congress in his message outlining the corporate evils and the remedies that are proposed for them.

In connection with the plan to empower some federal authority to pass upon all proposed issues of stocks or bonds by interstate corporations, it has been suggested by the president himself that through such legislation the much-discussed physical valuation of railroads might not only become necessary, but easy of accomplishment.
